The Braves and Griffmen hook up again this afternoon in the Concrete Coliseum and Griffith has announced that Doc Ayres and Joe Boehling will do the pitching. For Boston, Dick Rudolph is slated to work part of the game which should be mighty interesting, as the Beaneaters are thirsting for revenge and confident that they will turn the tables. that they will turn the tables.

Al Demaree, the Phillies' pitcher, writing for a Quaker City newspaper, says:
Contrary to many reports that have been circulated all winter, Alexander's arm is in perfect shape, and he will be on the firing line for the opening game with the New York Giants, in Philadelphia, one week from today. The big fellow took things easy in the South, but that does not mean that he is going back.

start the season. Consequently he is not bothering about the weather, and even should the squad encounter cold, rainy should the squad encounter cold, rainy weather on the trip north, Pat feels that it would tend to benefit rather than retard his players.

It is now practically decided that the same team which lined up against the Boston Red Sox last fall will take the field against the Giants next Wednesday This does not mean that Killefer's arr is gone, but he will probably wait fo warmer weather before trying it out.

Horace Milan left last night to join the Newark International League club, where his work this season will be close-ly watched by Manager Griffith. Milan will be recalled next fall by the Washington club.

There is one department of the game In which the Braves yesterday out-class-ed the Griffman, that was in the matter of "pep." Those Beancaters were on their toes every minute and chattering like magples, while the home team was sadly lacking in this respect. Shaken 'em up boys-put a little life into your work.

Elmer Knetzer, who pitched the last three innings for the Braves, was pur-chassed from the Federal League, where he made a fine showing last year. Knet-zer was not batted hard by the home

Milan and Judge put over a couple of tailies.

Gallia's wildness in the fourth was costly. Walks to Evers and Magee and Konetchy's single scored a run. In the fifth the Braves earned a tally when Blackburn singled, Nehf sacrificed, and Evers smashed the ball safely to right.

The schedule today will bring out some of the best bowling teams in this city and a crack bunch from Baltimore. On Friday night the Knights of Columbus of the District will hold sway and President P. T. McCann has promised one big time.

Bert Gallia and Harry Harper divided honors in the box. Wildness on the part of this pair paved the way for Boston's runs. Had Griff's youngsters run true to form, a shut out would probably have been recorded.

Southpaw Nehf worked five innings for the Bean-Eaters and was batted much harder than the score shows. Elmer Knetzer, a Federal Leaguer, pitched the three remaining chapters and had one disastrous inning.

The Nationals started the scoring in the third inning when two bases on balls, a cleverly executed double steal, hits by Milan and Judge put over a couple of tailies.

Evers smashed the ball safely to right field.

When the Griffmen came to bat in the sixth Knetzer was on the mound and with proper support might have escaped with a whole skin, but four errors mostly on bad throws linked with two timely hits scored five runs, and put the game well beyond Boston's reach.

Harry Harper twirled the last four innings and until the ninth was simply invincible. Maranville's single and three passes gave the Braves two runs. The score:

In the duckpin doubles the team of Riechard and Jay from the Capital Hill alleys hung up the second best score in the doubles by hitting the maples for a count of $85. Crenshaw and Carter, fr., are first in this line, having made 625 on Tuesday evening.

Eckstein kept up his good work in the singles by grabbing off a set of 567, which is high in this class so far. Gorman with a set of 545 is next in line.

It seems that the "famous Dutch count" desires to roll on the date that he was originally scheduled, which was this coming Friday night, but he is listed on the program for the Syracuse night.
